Maharajah, un mécène des années 1930

The Museum of Arts Decoratifs devotes an exhibition to the last Maharajah of Indore, Yeshwant Rao Holkar Bahadur (1908-1961) called Modern Maharajah, a patron from the 30's.

We discover the works and furniture of a young prince fascinated by English and French art and architecture, a friend and sponsor of many artists such as Man Ray, Brancusi, Le Corbusier and Perriand who ordered a modern palace to Eckart Muthesius.

The Musée des Arts Décoratifs has recreated the inside of his palace, with 300 pieces of art and furniture including works of Louis Sognot's, Charlotte Alix's, Jean Puiforcat's, Le Corbusier's Hans and Wassili Luckhardt's and even René Herbst's iconic creations. In addition, the masterpiece of the palace, Brancusi's birds will be displayed.
